He possesses great ability, has a well trained mind, is an able lawyer and is particularly well versed regarding the financial problems which now involve the nation's stability. In shaping tariff legislation he not only represents Connecticut's inter-ests with zeal and judgment, but has grasped the problem from all viewpoints. In doing so he has of the museum. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Beautiful Change From the Old Life. Mr. Editor: Another saloon, has gone ut of business and in its place a beautiful little store has been opened that will not only do credit to its owner but will bring satisfaction to its patrons. Saloons are not only going out of business but raids have been taking place showing that our young federal officer is still looking out for lawbreakers. If anyone wishes to know what the Volstend law has done for old Norwich it won't be necessary to call either upon the preachers or the police officers Instead pay a call to the wives and mothers who have had husbands and sons who have been frequenters of the saloons and other places where rum has been sold and in most of cases you will be told that instead of these men ar-riving home with an empty pocketbook on Saturday night and reeling into their homes they now have all that is needed for their comforts and instead of spending part of the nights in the back room they spend their evenings at home where they should be.

What a beautiful change from the old life! When we think of the giorious change that prohibition has brought into so many homes why should we not be willing to labor in the cause? ·F. J. W.
